

Memorial Garden
Registry

David Chen

By: Sean Dao
10/1/2025

Confidential

Copyright ©

Basic Info

Full Name: David Chen

Age: 38

Ethnicity: Asian American (Chinese American, if you want more specificity)

Profession: Historical Researcher

Languages: English, Mandarin Chinese, German

Specialization: Military history and archival preservation

Affiliation: Advocate for the Memorial Garden Registry

Profile

- David Chen is a dedicated historical researcher specializing in military history and archival preservation.
- As an Asian American scholar, he contributes both cultural perspective and professional rigor to his work.
- He is committed to preserving the stories of America's veterans with accuracy and respect.
- His primary goal is to ensure that veterans are recognized not only for their military accomplishments but also for their character and personal contributions.
- His work seeks to bridge the gap between historical record-keeping and public memory.
- He is dedicated to helping future generations understand the legacy of those who served.

Connection to the Memorial Garden Registry

- David is an advocate for the Memorial Garden Registry, a national digital archive honoring America's veterans.
- He values the platform's accessibility and seamless functionality.
- He regards it as an indispensable resource for researchers, genealogists, and families.
- In his view, the Registry plays a critical role in ensuring that the sacrifices and virtues of veterans are never forgotten.

Statement of Purpose

"Preserving history is more than recording facts—it is about safeguarding honor. By documenting the service and character of America's veterans, I strive to ensure that their legacies remain alive for generations to come."

David Chen on the Memorial Garden Registry

"The Memorial Garden Registry stands out as a model of digital preservation. Its accessibility and clear functionality make it not only a reliable research tool but also a meaningful archive that honors veterans with dignity. By centralizing records across cemeteries, it ensures that the service and character of America's veterans will be remembered and studied for generations."

Additional Information

- David frequently visits historic battlefields, where he conducts on-site research and records detailed field notes for comparative archival study.
- He is fluent in three languages (English, Mandarin Chinese, and German) enabling him to access and translate a wide range of international military documents and archival sources.
- He maintains a private collection of over 500 vintage military postcards, including rare pieces from the First World War, which he utilizes as primary sources in his research.

